Access Control and Reporting Software

Colour cost and access control made easy

Powered by Equitrac®

Unleash the power of colour with this simple, virtually automatic software solution that helps you make access to colour output easily controllable while keeping its cost manageable.

Access to colour . . .

Until recently, workers who needed to produce documents in colour would often go outside company channels to purchase their own desktop colour printers. While inexpensive to buy, these slower personal devices incur significantly higher per-page output costs, leading to unforeseen departmental expenses and even environmental impacts.

The Xerox WorkCentre multifunction system changes all that, by reducing the cost of brilliant colour to just pennies a page. With the added capability of Xerox Page Accountant™ companies can easily control access to this advanced digital equipment — allowing them to unleash the persuasive power of colour while better managing its costs.

. . . easily controlled and accounted for.

Simple to install, implement and use, Xerox Page Accountant allows system administrators to define colour output quotas for authorised users. The solution also provides basic accounting and simplified reporting on total usage — essential to achieving Smarter Document Management™ of printing expenses.

For even more powerful print tracking and document insight, customers with Xerox Page Accountant can easily transition to fully featured version of Equitrac Office.

Xerox Page Accountant can change the way organisations view colour printing, taking it from an expensive, ad-hoc solution to a well-planned company-wide strategy.

Effective Output Control in Action

Xerox Page Accountant makes it easy for system administrators to set colour output quotas for authorised users.

- In a retail setting, managers might be allowed to print sales reports and point-of-sale materials in colour, while associates might be limited to use of black and white for time sheets and other routine documents.
- In an advertising agency, the creative department could be authorised for colour, with the account team restricted to black and white.
- In an office setting, executives and their support staffs can print in colour, while employees are restricted to printing in black and white.
